PLCU welcomes two Point Loma Nazarene University interns

SAN DIEGO, CA — Point Loma Credit Union didn't have to look very far to find qualified candidates for two summer internship positions; Nathan Homer and Rodrigo Hernandez Bastidas both attend Point Loma Nazarene University, and will graduate in December 2016.

“We are always looking for ways to build relationships with local educational institutions,” said David R. Brooke, PLCU President/CEO. “We’re pleased we can help students from a respected local university develop good business skills while they learn about the role of credit unions in the community.

“It’s also noteworthy that Amy Eppert, a high school senior who will be attending Point Loma Nazarene University this fall, recently received one of our college scholarship awards to help pay for her education.”

Nathan, a senior majoring in Business Administration, is working in the Marketing Department. He says, “I’ve taken a lot of marketing classes in school, so it’s really interesting to see things I was taught applied to real world situations.”

Rodrigo is working in the Business Development Department. He thanks his PLCU team for being “so helpful and willing to help me learn new things. The contacts I am developing are another thing I love about this internship.” Rodrigo is earning a degree in Economics and Business Administration.
